The GOP Leadership has announced the following schedule: on Thursday and Friday, no votes are expected in the House.

Daily Quote...

"For most Americans, the economic growth of the Bush era has not translated into improved wages, greater financial security, better health care coverage or other measures of a rising standard of living. But Mr. Bush has never offered corrective policies. As for the minimum wage, he has echoed the perennial Republican warning that raising it could force businesses that can't meet the payroll to lay off workers. Persuasive and copious research on the issue disputes that assertion."
